About PEGI Ratings

The Pan European Games Information (PEGI) age rating system is a new, age rating system for interactive games. Designed to ensure that minors are not exposed to games that are unsuitable for their particular age group, the system is supported by the major console manufacturers, as well as by publishers and developers of interactive games. The age rating system has been developed by the Interactive Software Federation of Europe (ISFE) and has the enthusiastic support of the European Commission, who considers the new system to be a model of European harmonisation in the field of protection of children.

The age rating system comprises two separate but complementary elements. The first is an age rating, similar to some existing rating systems. The second element of the new system is a number of game descriptors. These are icons, displayed on the back of the game box that describe the type of content to be found in the game. Depending on the type of game, there may be up to six such descriptors. The intensity of the content is appropriate to the age rating of the game.The combination of age rating and game descriptors allows parents and those purchasing games for children to ensure that the game they purchase is appropriate to the age of the intended player. For further information visit the PEGI URL at pegi.info

Some games are also rated by the BBFC. For more details please visit www.bbfc.co.uk

Choosing the Right Game for the Right Age

Each game also has a PEGI rating to help you choose the appropriate game for the age of person you are buying for.

On each of the following pages we provide information on each game and a quick reference guide that highlights the formats the game is available on and the PEGI rating applicable.
